But they may well wonder whether Nehru's present attitude has not been determined by the resignations of Mr.
Kidwai and a number of like-minded Congress men. This excess preoccupation with personality [illegible] prestige. These policies are not the result of co[illegible] [illegible] King. They mean different things to different men. The sooner these differences are brought to the surface the better [illegible] would be for the Congress Country. Neither the Conservative ~~and~~ nor the LP in Britain would agree thus to divorce power from responsibility, as that would be to paralyze the party itself. The party conference elects its chairman annually and its "decisions" are nominally binding on the govt. If once in a while any one decision is taken they may ignore it and no crisis results
